Subject: China IPO

"The worldwide logjam blocking Chinese companies from an IPO has clearly been breached. Hong Kong and the US are both far more active now than they have been in years. China is taking all the right steps, and making all the right noises, including the announcement this week that Chinese-listed shares will be tradable in Hong Kong. China's Peter Pan 'I-don't-want-to-grow-up' domestic stock market is finally, irreversibly maturing."
